I believe that the proposed resolution does not remedy the monopolistic problem that Microsoft represents. I believe that the company should be broken up into several smaller pieces. The operating system(s) should be covered by a totally separate organization. It also fails to remedy the problems that many developers such as myself that have lost alot of money (and potentially millions/billions of dollars) due to allowing them to continue their unfair practices so long. The damage is already done and the world has had to pay for it with a current product that should have been (and would have been) created over 10 years ago, but Microsoft holds the whole computer industry back due to its unfair practices.

Thanks,
